

To Our Valued Customers and Partners:

We are pleased to announce that Unify has completed its acquisition of AXS-One, a leading provider of integrated content archiving solutions. AXS-One is now a wholly-owned subsidiary of Unify and its 50 plus employees now join Unify, creating a stronger, financially stable and innovative software company with significant growth potential.

With this exciting news, we would like to reiterate our commitment to you and to 100% customer satisfaction. We remain committed to delivering the product investments, technology innovation and world-class customer support you, our customers and partners, have come to expect from us. Your day to day interactions with Unify will remain the same.

The addition of AXS-One is expected to accelerate our growth and extend our core portfolio of application development, data management and migration solutions with the addition of integrated content archiving technology. AXS-One is a leader in integrated content archiving market with more than 400 customers worldwide and total revenues of $13.4 million for 2008.

Both companies have experienced recent fiscal year revenue growth, new customer acquisition and technology innovations, making us poised for significant growth ahead. We believe our customers and partners will benefit from the acquisition as it creates a stronger, more stable and scalable technology partner with whom to do business.

Thank you for your continued support of Unify. Each of you, as our customer and partner has played a significant role in keeping Unify strong, stable and growing.

Sincerely,
